

Monthly Disease Pattern Summary - April 2025

This report presents an overview of disease patterns recorded across four sectors during April 2025.

Sector A: Noticeable rise in flu-like symptoms with 122 reported cases. Environmental factors include dust levels and unfiltered water sources.

Sector B: Moderate increase in gastrointestinal issues linked to contaminated wells. Intervention through chlorination is underway.

Sector C: Fewer cases than March but increased skin conditions from industrial zones.

Sector D: No outbreaks, but sustained surveillance is recommended due to event season.

Each sector requires customized awareness efforts, improved case reporting tools, and better response coordination across sub-county health centers.

The report concludes with an action plan including outreach programs, public education, and updated training for field officers.
